INTRODUCTION

The Supreme Court of this State, desiring accurate tabulated information as to the number and nature of the cases coming to it for consideration, the manner of disposal and the variation from year to year, undertook some time ago to prepare a statement of the cases filed in the office of the Clerk of the Court for the decade extending from July 1, 1900, to June 30, 1910. After much investigation and careful search through the records of the Court, the 5737 cases filed between those dates have been traced to their final disposition, grouped under proper headings and totaled, by individual years and for the ten years. The result has been a large number of tabulated statements, 140 in all, which are here published for the information of the judiciary, the bar, and others interested in the subject. While some apparently unnecessary detail is included, it was found necessary to prepare each separate table in order to obtain the desired totals, and it has been thought advisable by the Court to publish the entire set, in order to furnish material for a study as to the changes, if any, that have occurred from year to year, in the subject matter, distribution, method of disposal, and other matters concerning the cases.

In order to make the comparisons desired, it was necessary to investigate and classify the record of each case. Four facts were chosen by the Court to be used as bases for comparison, viz:—the nature and subject matter of the action, the Court in which tried, the method of bringing it to the Supreme Court, and the disposition in this Court. The Court year virtually closes at the end of the June term, and so. throughout the tables, the word "year" denotes the twelve months from July 1 of one calendar year to June 30 of the next. For brevity, only the years are given, as "1900-1901."

With reference to the kind of action, the cases have been classified under five divisions: Criminal and Quasi Criminal, Law, Special Statutory, Chancery and Summary Proceedings. A few that could not properly be classed under either of those divisions have been grouped under the heading "Unclassified."

The tables in Section I use this classification of cases as the basis of Comparison. Table 1 of that Section, for example, is a comparison of the different criminal actions for the first year of the period, 1900-1901. It contains first a column giving the total number of cases involving each crime during that year; following that, on the same basis, the method of review, Court in which tried and disposition. The next nine tables are similar for the remaining nine years. Table 11 gives a summary for the entire ten years. Table 12 gives the total number of cases for each crime compared by years; while Table 13 shows the method of review, disposition and trial courts of all criminal cases for each year. In like manner the other four "Kinds of Action" are compared, there being 13 tables to each division.

The totals of the five Kinds of Action are next summarized in 13 tables. The first ten of these are devoted to the ten individual years respectively, each table being a summary of the five divisions for that year. Summary Tables 11, 12 and 13 are similar in form to the corresponding numbers in the divisions above mentioned, but they embrace the full ten year period and all cases filed.

The Classification in Section II relates to the distribution of the cases among the various trial courts. The arrangement of matter and sequence of tables is the same as followed in Section 1, except that the item Kind of Action is shifted to vertical columns and the names of the courts given on horizontal lines. Where no specific name is given before a county, the circuit court of that county is intended. In this Section the courts of the State have been grouped, as by statute, into the four Appellate districts. The cases from these districts are summarized in order as were the divisions in the previous Section. First Appellate District Table No. 1 gives the method of review, disposition and kind of action of all cases coming to this court from that district in the year 1900-1901. The next succeeding nine years follow, with two summary tables at the end. The other Appellate Districts are treated in the same manner.

Method of Review, as used in these tables, has reference to the manner in which cases come to this court: First, whether as appeals, writs of error, writs of certiorari or as original proceedings; and second, whether direct from the trial courts or through Appellate Courts.

The disposition of cases has been divided into orders of Affirmance, orders of Reversal, and Other Dispositions. These headings are not noted on the tables but the particular orders under each are separated throughout by heavy rulings.

Section III of the tables is devoted to Personal Injury actions. Such actions have increased in number so rapidly that it has been deemed wise to prepare a special set of tables for this class of cases. The manner and place in which an injured person was employed or engaged is here used as the chief fact for comparison. Thirteen tables comprise the Section, arranged in much the same manner as the various divisions of Section I.

The last Section (IV), containing two tables, deals with petitions for Certiorari, petitions for rehearing, oral arguments and the number of opinions filed.

The first table is devoted to certiorari petitions. A special act of the legislature went into effect on July 1, 1909, which provided a mode of review for certain judgments in this court by petitions for certiorari. The interest attached to this class of cases—as illustrating the working of the law referred to—has made it worthy of special attention. This table shows the kind of action, trial courts and disposition of these petitions. An order denying the petition disposes of the case in this court, but when the petition is allowed, the case follows the same course as a writ of error. The final disposition of these cases, therefore, as well as the disposition of the petitions themselves, is shown in this table.

The other table shows the number of cases filed, opinions, petitions for rehearing and oral arguments. The marked difference in the number of cases filed in the last year as shown on the table and the number of opinions published largely results from the Certiorari law, opinions not being prepared for publication when the petitions for certiorari are denied. The difference in these figures in the other years is caused partly by the dismissal of cases for various reasons before an opinion is prepared and partly by the transferring of cases to the Appellate Court.
